The fabrics,

most delicate things you have, you needn't be afraid to wash with Pearline. The fact that a thing is delicate and easily torn is the very reason why you should take Pearline to it. Nothing else can get it clean with so little rubbing and wrenching.

If you observe carefully, you'll notice that the women who are the most particular about their washing and their housekeeping and their housework are the ones who are the most enthusiastic about Pearline.

Look Out — Peddlers, and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you, "this is as good as," or "the same as" Pearline. IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled; if your grocer sends you an imitation, be honest —send it back. 598 JAMES PYLE, New York.

A SHOCKING MURDER.

A Strange and Terrible Case Developed at New York.

Portion of Body Found in River and Another Portion Miles Away on Land.

Remains Horribly Mutilated, Apparently to Prevent Identification.

New York, June 27.—Deputy Coroner Hanlon has performed an autopsy on the headless, legless and otherwise mutilated body of a man found in the East river near the 11th street pier yesterday and declares that the man was murdered. He found stab wounds between the fifth and sixth and seventh ribs in the region of the heart and also a stab wound back of the left collar bone that extended down into the apex of the left lung.

There was no water or serum in the lungs which Dr. Hanlon declared was proof that the man was alive before being mutilated. On the left forearm he found a bruise and on the inner side of the right forearm there was a contusion showing the shape of a heel with the imprint of hobnails of a heavy boot. In the palm of the right hand was an incised wound caused, Dr. Hanlon believes, by the victim seizing hold of the weapon with which the crime was done. The police at first thought the body was one which had been used by medical students for dissecting purposes.

Just as Dr. Hanlon had finished the autopsy word came over the telephone to him at Bellevue hospital that the body of a second man mutilated in much the same manner and rolled in oilcloth had been discovered in the woods near 170th street, and Undercliff avenue. Dr. Hanlon described the oilcloth in which the floating body was wrapped and the police sergeant at the other end of the wire declared that the body found in the woods was wrapped in oilcloth of a similar pattern. "Can it be that a Jack the Ripper is at work in New York?" exclaimed Dr. Hanlon, as he turned from the telephone.

The two portions were found to fit each other, though found 8 miles apart. The head of the man will probably not be found. Relatives of missing men viewed the body today but no clue was secured.

FIRE RECORD.

New York, June 27. Fire in the lumber yard and packing box factory of Frederick Buse, 1,110 to 1,112 Forest avenue, this morning did damage to the amount of $20,000. Thirteen horses were burned to death. The Manhattan Cornice and Roofing Co. building adjoining suffered to the extent of $4,000.

COUNTERFEITERS CAPTURED

Believed That One of Worst Gangs in Country is Broken Up.

Little Rock, Ark., June 27. Deputy U. S. Marshals attached to the Fort Smith court have captured three men whose arrest, it is believed, has effectually broken up the once famous band of counterfeiters, known to the secret service officials as the Bull Frog Valley gang. The gang was one of the most dangerous organizations of counterfeiters that have operated in the United States in recent years. Their headquarters "mint" was situated in Pope county, Ark.

The gang had branches for the purpose of floating their bogus money in nearly all the principal cities in the country, and ever, so the secret service men say, in Toronto, Canada, and the City of Mexico. Some of the most notorious counterfeiters and confidence men in the country were its members and agents. With the last term of the federal court held in this city eight indictments were returned against members of the band. These parties are now in custody awaiting trial. Several other members of the gang have been convicted of passing counterfeit money in various cities and are now serving terms of imprisonment.

The work of locating the headquarters of the Bull Frog Valley counterfeiters is considered one of the best pieces of detective work accomplished by the secret service operations in the past decade. The members of the gang sought a remote spot in the mountains of Pope county and settled there as rough mountaineers. They were supposed to be honest men. The money was manufactured in the mountain mint and shipped to agents in all parts of the country to be floated. All efforts of officers to locate the mint were baffled for a long time. Detectives in Chicago discovered that counterfeiting materials were sent from the city and, by a lucky piece of work they traced the shipments to the Pope county mint of the Bull Frog Valley gang.

FIRE AT SEA.

Steamer City of Rome Has Narrow Escape from Flames.

New York, June 27. The Anchor Line steamer City of Rome arrived this afternoon from Glasgow after a thrilling experience with fire on board ship, which fortunately was quickly got under control by the ship's firm crew. Captain Young reports that the City of Rome sailed from Glasgow and Moville on June 19 with 56 saloon, 90 second cabin and 150 steerage passengers and a cargo of general merchandise. Fine weather was experienced during the entire passage. At 2.30 p. m. on Saturday, June 26, in lat. 41.23, long. 63.29, smoke was detected issuing from No. 4 hold forward of the bridge.

The chief officer went forward to investigate. Before long dense volumes of smoke began to ascend from No. 4 hold. The fire alarm was quickly sounded and the ship's crew beat to quarters. Meanwhile an officer was detailed to notify the passengers who were on the deck. Steam and water were quickly turned into the burning compartment and at 5 p. m. the fire was under control.

The cargo in the burning hold consisted chiefly of jute goods and the general cargo will probably be a total loss.

Something to Depend On.

Mr. James Jones, of the drug firm of Jones & Son, Cowden, Ill., in speaking of Dr. King's New Discovery, says that last winter his wife was attacked with La Grippe, and her case grew so serious that physicians at Cowden and Pana could do nothing for her. It seemed to develop into Hasty Consumption. Having Dr. King's New Discovery in store, and selling lots of it, he took a bottle home, and to the surprise of all she began to get better from first dose, and half dozen dollar bottles cured her sound and well. Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption, Coughs and Colds is guaranteed to do this good work. Try it! Free trial bottles at Arn Warren's Drug Store.

SEVEN ARE DEAD.

Terrible Result of Wreck on the Wabash Railroad.

Conductor of Train Perhaps Fatally Injured —Nineteen Others Injured.

A Farmer Made Heroic Attempt to Save the People And the Train.

Kansas City, June 27. Seven coffins were forwarded to St. Louis today from Missouri City. They contained the remains of victims of last night's wreck on the Wabash road. A correct list of the dead follows:

W. S. Mills,
O. M. Smith,
Gustave Smith,
Charles Winters,
F. W. Brink, all postal clerks of St. Louis.
Edward Grinwod, baggagemaster, St. Louis.
Chas. P. Greenley, brakeman, St. Louis.

The conductor of the train, G. C. Copeland, of St. Louis, lingers between life and death. Of the 19 injured, not one is in a critical condition.

Death came to the mail clerks almost instantly. Their car pitched end first through the break in the trestle and they must have been drowned in the raging stream while in an unconscious condition.

Today but a small stream was flowing beneath the trestle. The awful storm of last night had swollen the stream. The flood carried away the bridge above the Wabash trestle and the wreck was hurled down upon the trestle and carried away a row of supports.

A farmer noticed it and tried to signal the train to stop.

For an hour he stood in the terrific downpour of rain only to fail at last for the storm was blinding and the engineer evidently could not see the signal which was frantically waved.

The engine went over the trestle but the tender went through. The baggage car toppled over on its side, while the mail car pitched into the stream.

Every life in the car was lost. The smoker followed. The chair car also plunged in.

VOICE FROM THE GRAVE

Clears Up the "Mystery" Regarding Missing Bond and Clears Cashier Barron's Memory—Dexter Bank Robbery Again.

Dexter, Me., June 26. One of the most serious charges against Treasurer Barron of the Dexter Savings Bank in the great mystery of nearly 20 years ago was that the entry on the bank cash book of the purchase of a United States bond the day before his death was a fiction. The amount charged as paid was $520.

The bond was not found among the securities of the bank after the murder. In order to ease the murderer by means of the bond, nothing was said publicly about its loss at the time. Public attention was not called to the matter until the charge of suicide was made a year after Barron's death. Then the entry was declared a fiction. A great deal has been said and written about it, as it has been one of the main props of the "theory."

The suspicion of the falsity of the entry rested on a slight irregularity in the way in which the entry was made, on the alleged improbability that Mr. Barron would have bought a bond at that time, and the fact that no person has come forward to say he sold it.

On the other hand, it was urged that government bonds were called at that time and had to be sent forward for redemption, or loss of interest would occur. A fortnight previous Charles Proctor, of Corinna, had sold Mr. Barron a $500 United States bond for $524.50, to be sent forward for collection.

On the supposed theft out entry, cash appeared to have been paid but on the start, but the margin was greater by $4.50. It was said that this difference was an indication of generousness.

It was claimed that the long delay before calling attention to the loss of the bond tended to obliterate the evidence of its sale, and, more than all else, that the president of the bank, the late A. F. Bradbury, testified that he, on the day before Barron's death, by mere accident, glanced into the partly open cash drawer and saw what, to all appearances, was a United States bond lying there.

Now it looks as if the source from whence the mysterious bond came to Mr. Barron had been discovered. A well known character in and about Dexter for the last 23 years has been an eccentric old man living in Corinna, whose name was Reuben Blanchard.

In April last Mr. Blanchard died. It is one of the queer things that during Mr. Blanchard's life time no word came to the public of what he knew of this important matter. The proof that he sold Mr. Barron this bond rests upon declarations made by him in recent years to his family and relatives. He was always a very reticent man.

For the past year it has been well understood in Mr. Blanchard's family, from remarks made by him, that he was the man who sold the bond to Barron.

He was asked why he did not inform the friends of Mr. Barron of what he knew, when they were searching for evidence from those who dealt with him, and he replied that he had a great dislike to being called before a court to testify.

Mr. Blanchard was a rothful, conscientious man, and proof that he said these things is beyond contradiction. He had no possible motive to misstate. It is a voice from the grave, but it may be accepted as clearing up the "mystery" of the bond entry beyond cavil.

Robison Says No.

Milwaukee, June 26. M. E. Robison, one of the owners of the Cleveland Base Ball Club, who is now in this city, denies the report that the Cleveland club is to be transferred to Milwaukee. He says he will not leave Cleveland unless he is beaten in the courts on Sunday playing. In that event Milwaukee would be his first choice.

Washington, June 26. W. F. Tibbetts of Rockland, Me., has been appointed United States ship commissioner for that port.

NATION'S ILL HOPE SO.

Republican Tariff Managers Expect This Will Be Last Week

Of the Debate in the Senate on the Tariff, With Final Vote Next Week.

Many of the Differences in the Republican Ranks Now Adjusted.

Washington, June 27. The Republican tariff managers are still hopeful that the present may prove the last week of the tariff debate in the Senate. All the schedules have been gone over once, leaving nothing to be done but to consider those paragraphs in the various schedules which have been passed when reached in their regular order because of differences of opinion among the Republicans themselves.

Many of these differences have been adjusted in the Republican ranks, but the Democrats will naturally take advantage of their knowledge of the feeling existing among their opponents to debate some of the questions at length. It is understood now that coal, leather, hides and lead ore will each be vigorously discussed as will also the questions, though more briefly, of reciprocity, the treatment of trusts and the disposition of the Hawaiian reciprocity treaty.

In view of the determination of the Democrats to exploit all these questions and others as well, it would seem impossible to conclude the Senate's work on the bill before the end of the week, and it is more than probable that the final word will be reserved for the following week.

The House will continue this week its policy of adjournment from Monday until Thursday. After that its course will depend upon the action of the Senate. If by any chance a vote should be had on the tariff bill Wednesday or Thursday, the House probably will remain in session to receive the bill, disagree to the Senate amendments and appoint conferees. Otherwise an adjournment will be had from Thursday to Monday.

GREAT EXCITEMENT

Over a Raid of Armed Mussulmans from Canea—A Desperate Combat.

Canea, Island of Crete, June 27. An armed force of 1200 Mussulmans made a sortie from Canea last night, crossed the military cordon and supplied the insurgents at Kantikastelli, 3 hours distant. A desperate combat ensued in which 13 Mussulmans were killed and 12 wounded.

The Christian inhabitants of the district are preparing to make reprisals by land and sea.

Later advices show that many Christians were killed as well as many Turks in the engagements that preceded the real fighting at Kantikastelli. The whole district is greatly excited.

The trouble arose from the encroachments of Mussulman refugees who attempted to pasture their cattle within the limits of the neutral zone.

DISTURBING RUMORS.

Report That Japanese Were Prepared to Seize Hawaiian Custom House.

San Francisco, June 27. Advices from Honolulu say that a rumor to the effect that the Japanese cruiser Naniwa would send a crew of men to take charge of the Hawaiian custom house is believed there. The Japanese failed to act and it is said that Admiral Beardslee's prompt action in ordering his men aboard caused the Naniwa's captain to change his mind.

Unsuccessful Attempt to Wreck Train.

Steubenville, O., June 26. About 11 o'clock last night another attempt to wreck a Consolidated railroad train was made at this place, almost under the eyes of two deputy sheriffs who had been left to guard the track a 24-foot fence rail being placed across the rails. This was struck and cut in two by a train, but no damage resulted. This is the fourth attempt to wreck trains in this vicinity and has caused considerable excitement.

CORNELL'S STAND.

Her Position Stated on the Great Rowing Question.

Willing to Form Alliance With Yale and Harvard but Not Give Up Others.

Yale Men Venture Some Assertions Regarding Big Race of Friday.

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., June 27. Several important facts about the future of college aquatics in this country are in evidence here today.

First, Cornell will, as victor, receive almost any proposition from Yale and Harvard that those colleges wish to make, but will not present a proposition as to future engagements.

Second, no proposition will be accepted by Cornell that compels her to join in an exclusive class with Yale and Harvard, at the sacrifice of her friendly relations with Columbia and Pennsylvania.

Third, Cornell, Columbia and Pennsylvania will combine for races, probably upon this course, and will invite the University of Wisconsin to come in. Yale and Harvard may also enter if their exclusive dual agreement is not a handicap.

Fourth, Cornell may try and arrange to race again in England with purely American methods and the representative of American college rowing.

Cornell holds that her victory over the other colleges compels recognition if Harvard and Yale wish to hold, or attempt to hold the record for American college rowing.

She also holds that as Cornell, as victor, condescends to row with Pennsylvania and Columbia in a spirit of true sportsmanship and to make the American championship as great a victory as possible, Yale and Harvard should come into the combination until at least such times as it is demonstrated that they are superior to these other colleges.

Yale Men Hit on Explanation.

New Haven, Ct., June 26. At Yale the students talked about nothing today but the boat race on the Hudson. All the critics agree that no Yale crew that ever lost finished as little exhausted as yesterday's at Poughkeepsie. It has always been athletic law at Yale not to finish behind unless you are on the bottom of the boat, instead of sitting upright on the benches. In this respect it is felt that Harvard set Yale a good example.

There are many Yale men who think that Yale would have caught Cornell had the crew heard the order of Coxswain Gorono to hit up the stroke for the final spurt on the last half mile; but not a man in the Yale boat heard Coxswain Greene's command except Stroke Langford. He and Griswold sent the stroke up quick, and the other members of the crew were not prepared for it. Consequently there were two distinct strokes going in the boat. It became unsteady, and Yale, instead of closing up, dropped behind.

Yale's crew was ordered to simply watch Harvard. The men paid no attention to Cornell until after two miles had been traveled.

THE JAPANESE POSITION

On the Annexation of Hawaii by the United States.

Washington, June 27. The Japanese position on the annexation of Hawaii has been made known from a very high source.

They claim it is an interference with their treaty rights and complain that the treaty was negotiated in the face of the most friendly protestations from Japan and at a time when Japan believed no such treaty would be undertaken.

Greeks to Occupy Karpenisi.

Athens, June 27. The Turkish army in Epirus having occupied several positions overlooking Agraphn, thus threatening the Greek retreat in the event of a resumption of hostilities, the Greek government has decided to occupy Karpenisi with a strong force.

More Trouble Feared.

New York, June 26. The end of the seven weeks' strike of the East side tailors, supposed to be amicably settled, is apparently not yet reached. Today the contractors intimated their intention to look out their employes in the settled shops. They asserted that they could not live up to the terms of the new agreement, and indications point to the precipitation of another tedious conflict between the Brotherhood of Tailors and the contractors' association.

Secretary Benjamin Wilkowsky, of the contractors' association, said to-day: "The next 24 hours will bring for t something new, and a big surprise at that. We have 617 con cannot keep the agreement

CLASS OF '97.

Graduating Exercises of the High School Seniors Saturday Night

An Interesting Programme Very Successfully Carried Out.

Holton Medals Go to Miss Anna M. Bourne and Miss Anna M. Rogers.

The graduating exercises of the senior class of the Bangor High School were held Saturday evening in City Hall and they were very successful and pleasing, every detail of the programme being finely carried out. The hall was completely filled with the relatives and friends of the scholars and citizens in general. The rear of the stage contained many evergreen trees, the front was decorated with large flags, palms, plants and flowers and overhead was light blue bunting, with the class motto "Adversis Major, Par Secundis." The decorations were very tasteful.

As Pullen's orchestra struck up a march the members of the class marched in from the rear of the hall and took the seats upon the stage amidst the applause of the audience.

After the class had been seated the exercises began with a finely rendered selection by Pullen's orchestra, which was heard with much pleasure. Prayer was then offered by Rev. George B. Hatch, pastor of the Second Baptist church, after which the orchestra gave another excellent selection.

Mr. Hunt's Address.

The first speaker was Harry S. Hunt and his subject was "Cuba's Fight for Freedom." He said that we have talked of Cuba by day and dreamed of Cuba by night and still the subject is not exhausted. Cuba is by far the largest and most fertile island in its group and six times have the Cubans revolted against Spanish rule. In February, 1895, the Cuban flag was unfurled, and war was again begun. Gen. Weyler started for Cuba thinking he could quickly end the war and began by sweeping the island from end to end. In the battles the Cubans have shown that they are fighting for country and to the bitter end. The idea seems to be that the men who are fighting are negroes but this is not so. Many men of the better classes are in the ranks.

Miss Sanborn's Address.

Miss May True Sanborn spoke upon "The Influence of Music." She spoke of ancient music and told how ever savages are greatly affected by it. Miss Sanborn gave examples in which would-be suicides had stopped their purpose of self destruction from hearing music. Vienna has appropriately been called the paradise of music, as many of the greatest musical artists have lived there and live there now. Music has always played an important part in the world, and its influence increases as the world goes on. Miss Sanborn spoke of a number of the world's most prominent musicians and gave some interesting characteristics of them.

Miss Peck's Address.

Miss Lucy Estelle Peck spoke upon "Woman in Music." She said a taste of music brings sweet or sad memories, for it appeals most strongly to the human soul. It glides into the darker musings with sweetness. It has been said that music influences woman more than man. Is it not strange that woman does not stand side by side with man in music? Is the emotional nature of woman regarding music which is a barrier against composition. Man is able to control his emotions better and thus compose more easily. Notwithstanding this condition, however, women have composed some very good music and there have surpassed man in vocal interpretation of music. They are also nearly their equals in playing the violin.

Miss Lowe's Address.

Miss Lucert's Lowe spoke upon "The Art of Ancient Egypt." She said the first art of which we have knowledge grew upon the banks of the Euphrates and the Nile. The art belonging peculiarly to the Egyptians was architecture. While many examples of it have disappeared the tombs still exist. The pyramids are the oldest and most mysterious examples of the art of architecture.

In the vicinity of the pyramids were many private tombs. A second age of Egyptian architecture is marked by the obelisks. They generally stood before the city gates or the entrance to temples. The magnificent temples are held next in importance to the tombs. Closely connected with the architecture of Egypt was sculpture. The aim of sculpture was portraiture, but there was always the same expression. The painting of the Egyptians was wall decoration.

Mr. McKoy's Address.

After music by the orchestra Mr. Charles Francis McKoy spoke upon "The Fall of Babylon." He said that Babylon was founded according to tradition two thousand years before the birth of our Saviour. The sound of revelry was heard, an enemy was besieging them in vain, they were buried in debauchery, but suddenly silence and the handwriting on the wall. The wise men were summoned but they could not solve the mystery. Daniel was brought in and interpreted the words. Alas! for the proud city her gates were not guarded and the Medes and Persians soon held it. Crownless and sceptreless Belshazzar lay in purple a body of clay. Mr. McKoy closed with a poetical quotation.

Miss Rogers' Address.

Miss Anna Maude Rogers spoke upon "A Peep at Three Centuries." Miss Rogers spoke of an imaginary journey back to olden times. She entered into a barely furnished house, with spinning wheel, a sweet faced woman pouring tea for her husband, a strong man. These must be Miles Standish and his wife and

A Foolish Act.

The St. John landlord made the mistake of a life time when he pulled down the American flag that was swung to the breeze from one of the windows of his hotel on the occasion of the Queen's jubilee. The American people have very generally testified their high appreciation of the Queen, a fact fully recognized by the British Ambassador. The little flag in question was an American testimonial, but this fool landlord was unable to appreciate the compliment. The reports state the Americans who were the guests of the hotel left immediately after this disgraceful incident and in the future American travellers in St. John will seek quarters elsewhere.

A Question of Veracity.

A distinct issue of veracity is raised between Senator Allen, of Nebraska, and Prof. Bateman, of Maine, representative Populists in their respective States. Bateman says that the appearance of his name on the letter of notification to Bryan, last year, was a forgery, the responsibility for which rests between Allen and Bryan. On the other hand Allen says: "I signed Bateman's name to the letter of notification at his express request." One or the other of these Populist statesmen has lost sight of the truth in the controversy that is now raging in the Populist party. If he signed the letter at the request of the Maine man it must have been a written request, because with the letter in Allen's possession Bateman would not personally request him to do what he might just as well do himself, and if such a written request can be presented it would turn the tables in Allen's favor. This family row is growing decidedly warm and it is to be assumed that Bateman will have something to say in answer to the charge made by Allen.

A Question of Methods.

Since the boat race the American vs. the English stroke has been an interesting topic of discussion. The Cornell boys were trained under American methods, the Harvards under English methods and the Yale crew used a sort of combination of the two methods. The result was a victory for Cornell that crew rowing the race in fine form with a strong finish while the other crews manifested more or less distress. Mr. Lehmann, the Harvard coach says that his crew went "stale," which seems to be a somewhat peculiar excuse for a trainer to make. It is understood that Mr. Lehmann will continue to train the Harvard crew. The Boston Herald in its discussion of the merits of the race displays its customary characteristics. In its Sunday edition the Herald said:

To say that the defeat is an illustration of the superiority of the Cornell stroke is simple nonsense.

The Saturday edition of the Herald, however, in reporting the race makes the following specific statement from one of its special representatives:

Cornell's easy victory left no room for the slightest doubt as to the superiority of her methods and her crew. Yale while not showing at the front proved that she had merit, but Harvard clearly demonstrated that the English stroke as taught her was not the stroke for a four-mile race.

It will thus be seen that the Herald flatly contradicts itself, but this is an every day occurrence in that office, concerning all questions of public discussion.

[New York Sun, Dem.]

Democrats and Republicans.

The Louisville Post, a Democratic opponent of Bryanism, has these curious remarks about New York and Democracy:

"It is scarcely necessary for New York in 1897 to vote the Republican ticket to emphasize its position on sound money. New York's vote last year was conclusive on that point.

"But New York is for something in addition to sound money; that is, for sound Democracy.

"The Democrats of the country are disposed to get together in an effort to take the Government from the Republicans, but they can never get together on the Chicago platform."

It is just as necessary in 1897 as it was in 1896 for New York to show that she is in favor of sound money. She can do so only by voting the Republican ticket. Should she fail to do so, and a so-called Democratic ticket be elected, no matter by what evasion or juggling of the real and national issues at stake, the force of Bryanism would be greatly and justly encouraged. In particular, if this city should be carried by the Democrats, the Democratic position in national affairs would be strengthened tremendously. The Bryan leaders will welcome aid from the so-called gold Democrats; but they know perfectly well that the fruits of a Democratic victory will be garnered by the supporters of the Chicago platform and by nobody else. If "sound Democracy" does not vote the Republican ticket, it will vote for unsound Democracy.

The only "sound Democracy" now visible or attainable is in the Republican party, and will be until the Democrats, in National Convention assembled, abandon the Chicago platform. The vast majority of the Democratic party stands upon that platform, and not with reluctance but with enthusiasm. The little factions of Democrats that object to the platform will have no standing in the Democratic party, and will not even be considered as belonging to it until they swallow their convictions and adhere to the party programme. If they are not ready to do so, they will not "get together" with the Bryanites, and in maintaining their separate organization they simply waste the little strength which they possess without doing anything practical to oppose the revolutionary principles which are the gospel of the present Democratic party.

The political fate of these "sound Democrats" who prefer a name to a principle, or who hate a protective tariff more than they hate free silver and free riot, is not doubtful and cannot be long delayed. The trimmers and weak-kneed brethren among them will crawl upon the Chicago platform, protesting that they had rather get together under the Democratic banner than belong to a minority faction. The brave irreconcilables among them will continue to fight, and we will see the scanty number of their followers growing even scantier. And those of them who will not blink at the facts and sincerely and without reserve prefer Republican rule to the enormities of the Chicago platform, will continue to vote the Republican ticket until the Democratic party has been licked enough to know that it must give up its socialistic, lawless, and tramp-flattering proposals. That will not be before 1900, and meanwhile it is necessary that at no election shall Bryanism be allowed to gain an advantage.

Eager, aggressive, fanatically confident, the Democratic party is everywhere renewing the fight of 1896 and showing its unabated zeal for the doctrines of the Chicago platform. If anywhere, as in this town, any of its leaders seek to turn to local issues, it is merely because they are afraid of national issues at this time, and hope by gulling the public to win, by means of local issues, what every Democrat in the country knows would be a great national Bryanite triumph, the election of a mayor of New York in the name of Bryan's party.

The Democrats who voted for Palmer and Buckner misunderstand ludicrously the sentiment of the Democratic party if they think that between six and seven millions of Democratic voters dream of giving up the Chicago platform for the sake of winning them back. They can be reunited in no other way than by accepting the Chicago platform. They cannot resist that platform effectively at present except by joining with the Republican party. The emergency which requires the services of all the friends of good money and order has not passed away. The snake is scotched, not killed.

The Century
IN 1897.
ALL NEW FEATURES.
The Century will continue to be in every respect the leading American magazine, its table of contents including each month the best in literature and art. The present interest in American history makes especially timely A Great Novel of the American Revolution, its leading serial feature for 1897, and the masterpiece of its author, Dr. S. Weir Mitchell. The story, "Hugh Wynne, Free Quaker," purports to be the autobiography of its hero, an officer on Washington's staff. Social life in Philadelphia at the time of the Revolution is most interestingly depicted, and the characters include Washington, Franklin, Lafayette and others well known in history. It is safe to say that the readers of this great romance will obtain from it a clearer idea of the people who were foremost in Revolutionary days, and of the social life of the times, than can be had from any other single source. The work is not only historically accurate, but is a most interesting story of love and war. The first chapters are in the November number. Howard Pyle will illustrate it.

Campaigning With Grant, by General Horace Porter, is the title of a series of articles which has been in preparation for many years. General Porter was an aide on General Grant's staff and a close friend of his chief, and the diary which he kept through the war is the basis of the present articles, which are striking pen-pictures of campaign life and scenes. They will be fully illustrated. The first one is in the November Century.

A new novel by Marion Crawford, author of "Mr. Isaacs," "Saracinesca," "Casa Braccio," etc., entitled, "A Rose of Yesterday," a story of modern life in Europe with American characters, begins in November. The first of a series of engravings, made by the famous wood-engraver, T. Cole, of the old English masters also is in this issue. New features will be announced from time to time.

American Features: The Mexico of To-Day, a series by Charles F. Lummis, splendidly illustrated—the result of a recent visit to Mexico undertaken for Harper's Magazine. (Mexico is pre-eminently a silver-producing country, and its monetary operations rest entirely on a silver basis.) Owing to the keen discussion of certain economic problems in connection with issues of urgent importance in American politics, these papers will command general attention. American Historical Papers by Woodrow Wilson, John Bach MacMaster, and James Barnes. The true story of Sheridan's Ride, by Gen. G. A. Forsyth. Continuation of Howell's Personal Reminiscences of eminent literary Americans.

Imposing Parade of English Navy at Isle of Wight.

Queen Represented by the Prince of Wales at the Review.

Ryde, Isle of Wight, June 26.—The apotheosis of Great Britain has rightly culminated on the waters of the Solent. London witnessed the sumptuous outpouring of loyalty, the love of a proud people for their sovereign, an exhibition of national growth and domination, in the long train of princes and potentates which graced the Queen's triumph. All of it put together, however, furnished no such living picture of the might of Britain—the might that has made right over and over again—as was afforded this morning by the great naval display in these waters. Nor has there been anything this week in all that has gone before, to bring home so vividly the material changes of the queen's long reign.

When Victoria ascended the throne the "Walls of England" were wooden. There were no steel battleships, no iron cruisers, no triple expansion engines, no steam in use in war vessels, no search lights, no electricity in the service of man, no great or quick-firing guns, no torpedoes. The lights aboard were still lit with flint and steel and were no more brilliant than whale-oil could be; the guns were still fired with a slow match; the three-decker was still the model of all that was worthy in naval architecture, and tonnage was reckoned within such modest limits that a vessel of more than 3,000 was looked upon as a marine wonder.

Never before, therefore, has a sovereign seen such changes in the bulwarks of empire as have fallen to the lot of Queen Victoria. At Spithead this morning was assembled the latest triumphs of the industrial revolution under Victoria; triumphs of workers in iron and steel and metals, triumphs of inventors, triumphs of chemists, and the giants of the laboratory, triumphs of the shipbuilder, the engineer and the artisan, triumph of the genius of a great nation.

This may be demonstrated better by figures. In 1837 the total number of ships in commission was 106. Omitting steam paddle tugs, not then considered vessels of war, and other small craft such as cutters, receiving ships, yachts and packet brigs, the navy list comprised 120 ships whereof the largest had a displacement of 4,000 tons.

The navy list this year—including ships in and out of commission but on the list—comprises 430 vessels, mounting 2,950 guns with a tonnage of 1,463,219 and a horse-power of 1,887,595. This growth has synchronized with the change from wooden walls to armor of proof, from propulsion by sails to propulsion by steam, from armaments of many guns to armaments of few guns of tremendous power, the concentration of the 1,837 broadside of 60 guns into one monster piece of ordnance.

Not an Old Timer.

It is perhaps a pity that in the seven lines of the British fleet at Spithead, there was not anchored an old three-decker to emphasize this startling change. For the men-of-war that first saluted the queen in the long ago were magnificent sights with their high decks and towering masts bearing billow on billow of swelling sail, riding the waves like great sea-birds and realizing to the full all the wild witchery of the romance of the ocean. Far different were the great battle ships this morning with their sullen steel sides and short masts, great guns, rams, and torpedoes—everything that gave the sense of power, the brutality of force.

The fleet was drawn up in seven lines on the South of the Solent, the head of the lines being off Brading, thence stretching Westward almost to Cowes. The outer line of all on either side of the Sturbridge Shoal, and known as "E" line, was composed of fourteen special merchant vessels whereof the American liner New York was one. Next in "A" line were the foreign men-of-war, among which was the first-class armored cruiser Brooklyn, Rear Admiral Miller, of the United States navy.

The total array of armed vessels was 136, manned by 45,000 men and moored in lines of five miles each. The 14 foreign war ships formed the sixth line. The aggregate British tonnage was about 600,000 tons.

Each maritime nation sent an admiral in his flagship to witness the review. They formed a line abreast of the British battleships, where they were favorably placed to compare their own naval architecture with that of other nations. Each nation sent its best available ship and a magnificent display resulted.

An interesting feature of the British fleet was the training ships which comprised three of the early iron-clads, a squadron of cruisers which usually winters, with a training crew on board, in the West Indies or in some other warm latitude, and a fleet of training brigs which cruise in the neighborhood of the British ports.

The British fleet assembled June 22 and was drawn up in four lines extending from abreast of Portsmouth Harbor to a distance of about five miles to the westward.

Following the precedent of former naval reviews there was free access to the review ground up to the hour named for the official inspection, when all vessels with visitors anchored in their assigned positions, and the tour of the fleet was commenced by the Prince of Wales.

As usual, on such occasions, the Trinity yacht, Irene, with the elder brethren on board, led the way, the Victoria and Albert, with the Prince of Wales on board, being accompanied by the royal yachts Osborne and Alberta, the admiralty yacht Enchantress, the Cunard liner Campania with the members of the House of Lords and House of Commons on board, and a vessel conveying the foreign ambassadors and their suites.

The commander-in-chief of this port—Sir Nowell Salmon, V. C., K. C. B., transferred his flag from the Victory to the battleship Mars, one of the latest additions to the fleet and which has been built and fitted out in two years a great advance in rapidity of construction.

The battleships Jupiter, Victorious and Renown also made their first appearance in the commissioned fleet.

These four ships as well as the Majestic and Magnificent are armed with the new 12 inch wire guns, of which each ship carries four mounted barbette, two forward and two aft. These guns have a range of about 15 miles. In addition they carry twelve six-inch quick-firers, 18-12 pdr. quick-firers and 12-3 pdr. Hotchkiss, and are fitted with five torpedo discharge tubes.

Another important addition to the fleet was seen in the two cruisers Powerful and Terrible, the former commissioned for the China station, vessels of 25,000 horse power and a speed of 22 knots. They include in their armament two 9-2 inch guns and a number of quick firers and Maxims.

Queen Represented by Prince of Wales.

Ryde, Isle of Wight, 5 p.m.—June 26: The honorary admiral of the fleet, his royal highness, the Prince of Wales, has just concluded on behalf of the sovereign of the realm the review of the ships gathered in her honor. The review itself did not add very much to the picture framed for the spectator this morning, saving always the battlelike roar of great guns which was enough to waken the dead beneath the sea—when the salute of 21 was fired.

During the morning the excursion steamers, densely crowded to the rails, were very busy in and out of the lines of ships, dodging about, manoeuvring for good positions and generally behaving in eccentric fashion, resembling nothing so much as a lot of huge water spiders. Owing to a wise regulation by the admiralty that no vessel was allowed to use other than the best Welsh coal, the smoke nuisance proved less disagreeable than anticipated.

The Prince of Wales, accompanied by Admiral, H. R. H., the Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha and Captain H. R. H., the Duke of York, the Princess of Wales, and other royalties, with their suites, arrived at Portsmouth at one o'clock. The party immediately proceeded on board the royal yacht Victoria and Albert, in which 41 years ago her majesty inspected the fleet, whereupon her royal highness' standard was hoisted.

After lunching on board, at 2.30, the Victoria and Albert, with the principal royalties, left the harbor for Spithead. She was followed by the yacht Irene, by the Pando, the Carthage and the Eldo, an admiralty yacht, these vessels carrying the distinguished foreign visitors. Then came the Enchantress, an admiralty yacht, with the Hon. Geo. J. Goschen, first lord of the admiralty, and after her the admiralty's yacht, Wildfire, with Mr. Chamberlain, the secretary of state for the colonies and the colonial premiers. She was followed by the Eldorado carrying the ambassadors and special envoys, including the Hon. Whitelaw Reid. Then came the Danube, with the members of the house of lords, the Campania, with the members of the house of commons, and the Fire Queen, the yacht of the commander-in-chief at Portsmouth.

As the Albert and Victoria was seen approaching the fleet, led by the Renown and echoed by the foreign vessels present, fired a deafening royal salute of 21 guns. Simultaneously the blue-jackets and marines manned ships, standing on the ironclads in solid lines round their outer edges and filling their tops, while on vessels of the older type the yards were quickly dotted. It was very theatrical and interesting. The Victoria and Albert followed by the other yachts then steamed through the lines, the sailors heartily cheering, the bands playing "God Save the Queen."

The Victoria and Albert afterwards anchored between the Renown and the foreign war vessels. Immediately the steam launches of the foreign commanders left the sides of their big ships and made for the Victoria and Albert, on the quarterdeck of which the commanding officers were received by the Prince of Wales.

This ended the review. The royal yachts then returned to Portsmouth.

After dinner his royal highness and guests will come out again to the fleet to witness the illuminations.

All the warships will be illuminated this evening with "rainbows" of electric lights extending from the stem to the bow, over the mastheads. In addition the hulls of all the vessels present will be outlined by electric lights.

There will be no moon visible, and the effect of the simultaneous lighting up every ship of the gigantic fleet, and switching off may be expected to be magical.

On the occasion of the visit of the Italian squadron to Spithead in 1895 when they were welcomed by a fleet of English ships the electric illuminations formed one of the prettiest features of the fete.

The royal guests include Rear Admiral H. R. H. Prince Henry of Prussia, K. G. Vice-Admiral H. R. H. the Duke of Genoa, Rear Admiral Miller, U. S. N., and other distinguished flag officers.

Banquets, balls, garden parties, dockyard visits and athletic sports will be included in the programme which it is supposed will fill the week, subsequent to the review.

Other Naval Displays.

International exhibitions have become common occurrences, and the Spithead review of 1897 may be regarded as a great international naval exhibition from which doubtless the designers and constructors of the various nations will carry away much valuable information.

The waters of the Solent have previously witnessed many magnificent views of the naval forces of England.

On April 23, 1856, at the close of the Crimean war a great review was held there when there were columns of screw line-of-battle-ships—at that period the latest development of naval power—of screw frigates and corvettes, a host of side-wheel vessels, and of "floating batteries" of the Merrimac type, while one squadron of 160 gunboats brought up the total number of ships to 240.

This fleet carried 3,002 guns and was of 30,671 horse-power. Admiral Sir George Seymour was in chief command of this fine fleet which was reviewed by Her Majesty on board the royal yacht "Victoria and Albert." The changes in naval architecture which have taken place during the last 50 years have swept away all these wooden vessels. The classes to which they belonged no longer exist, the sole remaining vessel which still takes the seas being the royal yacht "Victoria and Albert," which today is the standard of the Prince of Wales at the naval review. Probably a more beautiful vessel of her class has never been launched, and the recent announcement that the model of a new steel yacht to replace her has been submitted to the queen was not read without regret.

The next great review held at Spithead was on July 17, 1867, when Her Majesty, accompanied by the Sultan of Turkey, reviewed a fleet of wooden vessels and ironclads (of which the most modern of the latter were the Minotaur, Achilles, Warrior, Black Prince, Bellerophon and Lord Clyde) under the command of Sir Thomas Pasley, Bart., C. B.

On June 23, 1873, the waters of Spithead were again the scene of a naval review—this time in honor of His Majesty, the Shah of Persia.

On August 13, 1878, Her Majesty inspected the fleet at Spithead, and on July 23, 1887, on the occasion of the queen's jubilee a large fleet was assembled there and reviewed by the sovereign.

The most modern ships present on that occasion were the Collingwood, and Conqueror. The fleet was composed of 131 vessels, the personnel of 20,200 officers and men.

During the past decade enormous advance has been made both in the number and construction of the ships of the royal navy, and this cannot better be exemplified than by the fact that of the 21 battleships reviewed by the Prince of Wales, in behalf of the queen today, four only took part in the jubilee ceremony of 1887, whilst of the 43 cruisers present not one existed in 1887. Needless to say the 30 torpedo boat destroyers are of a class which has only been introduced during the past five years and which appears to be destined to play a very important part in modern sea warfare.

A Brilliant Day for the Parade.

Portsmouth, Eng., June 26.—After a threatening morning, the weather brightened and a brilliant day for the great naval review was promised. The streets were thronged with people at an early hour and on all sides were to be seen bewildering masses of glittering uniforms, gay multitudes of civilians, military bands and sailors of all ranks and nationalities.

In gallant array off the coast were the 163 British war vessels, manned by about 45,000 men, aggregating some 600,000 tons, which were to be reviewed by the Prince of Wales representing the queen as the final display of the jubilee celebrations.

The colonial troops arrived at 8 o'clock and were met at the railroad station by a military guard of honor. Then, headed by military bands, they marched to the town hall, where the lord mayor and corporations of Portsmouth, in full robes of office, welcomed the visitors. The soldiers from the colonies received a great popular ovation. Their march from the station to the town hall and from the town hall to the point of embarkation was nothing less than a triumphal progress.

The American Line steamship, New York, with a large party of sightseers on board, left Southampton at 5 o'clock yesterday evening and took up the position assigned to her in the line of special merchant vessels. As the American greyhound traversed the lines of British warships, with the stars and stripes flying proudly and a fine band playing national airs, she was greeted with cheers and each warship dipped her flag. As the New York passed the German warship Koenig Wilhelm the latter's band played "Hail Columbia."

WORK OF LIGHTNING.

Many People Killed and Much Property Damaged.

Atlanta, Ga., June 26.—Lightning played havoc with lives and property in Georgia Thursday. The daughter of the mayor of Powder Springs, a popular summer resort in this state, Miss Hope Scott, was slain by a bolt and at the same place a threshing machine was torn to pieces by lightning, its operators dangerously injured and the engineer killed.

At Carrolltown, the centre of the stock raising industry in the state, James Downs, Jr., and Samuel Condo were killed by lightning, the bolt tearing their clothes and discoloring their features. Damage to property in this place will be immense.

At Milner, in the northern portion of this state, a bolt struck on Mr. J. A. Farley's farm and killed Samuel Lawrence, a farm hand, badly burned the other and injured Mr. Farley's son.

The storm which accompanied the electrical display flooded all the waterways and the loss of property owing to fires originating from lightning and resulting from the floods will range very high.

The lightning played curious freaks, sometimes merely touching an old run and again destroying some pretentious farmer's residence. The damage in the large towns was comparatively light.

One Killed and Another Wounded

Ukiah, Cal., June 26.—George Colby who escaped from jail a year ago while waiting sentence for burglary, was surrounded by a posse near Middletown last night. He was accompanied by his father. When ordered to throw up their hands they began firing. The elder Colby and one of the posse were mortally wounded.

Among the remedies that do more than recommend Johnson's Anodyne Liniment stands first.

PRACTICAL ECONOMY.
In buying medicine as in other matters, it is economy to get Hood's Sarsaparilla because there is more medicinal value in Hood's Sarsaparilla than in any other. Every bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla contains 100 doses and will average, taken according to directions, to last a month, while others last but a fortnight.

Hood's Pills are the only pills to take with Hood's Sarsaparilla. Easy and yet efficient.

One's physical feelings like the faithful set r search and point out plainly the [illegible] of [illegible] or health. If a man is not feeling well and vigorous if he is losing flesh and vitality if he is less nervous sleepless he certainly is [illegible]. The down hill road from health to sickness is smooth and declines rapidly. At the first intimation of disease the man takes a pure simple vegetable [illegible]. It puts his digestion in good order [illegible] that puts the rest of his body in order. The medicine that will do this is a medicine that is good to take in any trouble of the blood the digestion or the respiration no matter how serious it [may] become.

The medicine to take is Dr Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It is a remarkable remedy. It cures diseases in a perfectly natural way without the use of [drugs]. It cures by helping Nature. It has peculiar tonic effect on the lining membranes of the stomach and bowels. It puts the [membranes] in healthy [condition], stimulating the secretion of the [digestive] juices and [furnishing] to the blood the proper nutritive properties. It [drives] out over the whole body and [forces] the germs before it into the excretory channels. It builds up firm flesh, it makes the skin and the eyes bright.

Dr Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has been found perfectly efficacious in the treatment of skin diseases—eczema, tetter, erysipelas, salt rheum—from common pimples or blotches to the worst case of scrofula.

PLEADED NOT GUILTY.

Albert M King Arraigned in United States District Court at Boston

Boston, June 26. Albert M King, the young messenger of the Boylston National Bank appeared before Judge Brown in the United States district court this morning and pleaded not guilty to the indictment charging him with embezzling $30 000 from that bank. There are eight counts in the indictment. King looked pale and his features apparently pinched, as he rose in response to the call of the court

The clerk was about to read the long indictment when King's counsel James K Berry, said he waived the reading and Clerk Mason began to King "Are you guilty or not guilty

The boy kept his eyes riveted on the clerk for a moment and in an almost inaudible voice said "Not Guilty"

Assistant Attorney Casey said that he understood Mr Berry and King's senior counsel, C W Bartlett, would be engaged in court for some time and asked that King be held for trial

Judge Brown then placed the defendant under $2 500 bonds, the same amount fixed by the grand jury, for his appearance from day to day during the present term of the United States district court. This term of court does not end until a second Tuesday in September, and King will probably be tried during the first or second week in that month. He will not be tried before September. After pleading King left the court room with his friends and was private [illegible] taken from the building, as there were a number of curious people waiting to catch a glimpse of him in the corridors

A Commission Merchant Rescued

Robert C Davidge, fifty years old, a commission merchant, with a place of business at No 138 Pearl street and who lives at No 24 Lefferts Place, Brooklyn, was found struggling in the East River at 2 o'clock Wednesday morning at Pier 2. How he came to be in the water could not be learned. After he was rescued he was taken in an ambulance to Hudson street hospital. He had swallowed so much salt water that he was unable to give any account of how he fell overboard. Leander Lehman a watchman on the pier, heard shouts coming from the direction of the end of the pier. He ran to the edge, and in the water saw a man struggling to clasp one of the spiles, which he finally succeeded in catching hold of. The watchman shouted for John Hanke, another watchman. A rope was secured and one end of it was made fast to the pier and Hanke slid down to the water's edge and tied a noose under the arms of the man in the water. After Hanke reached the pier he and the other watchman drew the man out of the water. All this time Davidge had held fast to a small satchel, the contents of which were not made known. After the man had been stretched out on the pier, where he lay in a semi conscious condition, a policeman was summoned, and the latter sent for an ambulance

The police are not inclined to believe that it was a case of attempted suicide, but believe that Mr. Davidge, while suffering from temporary aberration, wandered down to the edge of the river and fell in. His condition is not considered serious

Telegraphic Notes

A special cable from a leading flour importer of Amsterdam to the Northwestern Miller states that the protectionist party in Holland has been totally defeated and a free trade majority was elected. This assures the future of the American flour trade with Holland which was the object of the attack of Dutch protectionists and is gratifying to the millers of this country

NEWS BY CABLE.

Deluge of Grumbles by Speculators After the Jubilee.

Americans Very Much in Evidence at the Procession - Other Items.

(Special Cable Letter.)

London June 26.—After the jubilee festivities there has been a deluge of grumbling begun by the speculators who almost without exception, have lost money owing to their foolishness in demanding fortunes for seats. Then the caterers did not find the crowd as hungry and thirsty as they considered the people ought to have been, the tradesmen found that the jubilee visitors could not buy to any great extent as it took almost all their savings to see the show and there has been considerable grumbling on the subject of the jubilee honors

The men whose names have been left out of the list are notably Liberal politicians and former ministers who declare that the honors were given on the strictest party lines. With the exception of Sir Wm Vernon Harcourt, no former Liberal minister was invited to be present at the ceremony before St Paul's cathedral and the members of the house of commons who arrived too late at Buckingham Palace to be in the audience declare the queen should have waited for them

The charitable societies women think that the Princess of Wales dinner to the poor was a kindly thought but they claim it was a mistaken idea and that the money had better been given to societies dealing habitually with this work [illegible] thousand [illegible]

The temperance people are wildly raving at beer being given to the [illegible] poor and there are thousands of [illegible] plaints based upon [illegible] that everybody could not get a front seat at a favored place and at a certain [illegible]. All this accords with the [illegible] glory of the dismantled line of route. The only [illegible] fortunes at wages of three [illegible] hour

Americans Much in Evidence

Americans were much in evidence at the jubilee procession. Mrs Bradley Martin dressed in white was at the Bachelors club. Mr Wm. Waldorf Astor with a large party was at Lord Northbrook's house on Pall Mall. Lady Wm Beresford entertained large luncheon party and Mrs John W Mackay received a few friends. Mrs Cavendish Bentinck and a number of other [illegible], Mrs Ogden Goelet and [illegible], Mr [illegible] at Chatsworth House. The house was draped with white roses and orchids in American profusion

Vanity Fair on Col Hay

Vanity Fair's cartoon for the current week is Col John Hay the United States ambassador who thus joins the gallery of the most famous men of the day. After a flattering notice of Col Hay as a journalist, poet, author soldier and diplomat, Vanity Fair concludes

He has a wife and a charming daughter who have immediately taken places in London society. Altogether he is quite a cultured American who can talk exceedingly well. He is a kindly, rather serious, good natured polite gentleman who speaks with a slight accent when warmed to the subject.

There is considerable comment at the Canadian premier Wilfrid Laurier accepting a knighthood after repeatedly declining that honor. It is understood that his acceptance was due to the personal urging of Queen Victoria who expressly desired to honor the representative of the Dominion of Canada

To Become a London Manager

Mr Chas. Frohman has returned from Paris and has completed all arrangements to become a London theatrical manager. But his interests in the United States are so large that it is impossible for him to give up the management entirely. Therefore Mr Frohman will divide his time between London and New York

Talking over his arrangements yesterday with a representative of the Associated Press, Mr Frohman said

I have formed a partnership with Messrs. Edwardes and Gatty and he forth plays produced at their theatres will be managed under the names of Gatty Frohman and Edwardes. I shall be free to continue my American business as I please. At present I intend to devote the larger share of my time to my American enterprises. According to the contract I am obliged to produce at the Adelphi at least one new American play with an American company each season

New Yacht for the Queen

It has been decided at the admiralty to build a new yacht for the queen and the design has been submitted to and approved by her majesty. The new vessel which will be built at the Pembroke dock yard will in general outline resemble the great Atlantic liners. It will be 420 feet long with only 50 feet beam and be fitted with powerful engines so as to have a great speed. While no expense will be spared in order to make the vessel the finest of her class afloat in her decorations and fittings, she will closely resemble her majesty's present yacht, the Victoria and Albert.

Oxford Won

London, June 26.—The cricket match between the gentlemen of Philadelphia and Oxford, past and present, which was commenced on Thursday last was continued today. At the close of play yesterday the Americans had scored in their innings 202 runs for 6 wickets down with H H Bates and P H Clark not out. Their innings closed with 221 runs as the score, making a total with 120 runs of their first innings of 341. The Oxford eleven in their first innings, scored 281 runs consequently the home players had 81 runs to make in their second innings today in order to win

Oxford made 81 runs for 3 wickets and won the match by seven wickets

Mrs. Oliphant Dead

London June 26.—Mrs Margaret Oliphant, the authoress, died last evening of cancer

All that is beautiful and lovely in woman, finds its climax in motherhood. How often we find among our American women that longing for the prattling voice the idol of their waiting hearts. It is a natural instinct this yearning of the heart, for offspring, yet the wife hesitates to talk with the family physician on this delicate subject. A good way to do is to send for a copy of the "People's Common Sense Medical Adviser," in plain English, a great 1008 page illustrated family doctor book, wherein all such delicate subjects are fully discussed—21 one-cent stamps to cover cost of mailing only, sent to World's Dispensary Medical Association Buffalo N Y, will bring a free copy Formerly sold at $1 50

ALL OVER THE STATE

A correspondent writes the Rockland Courier Gazette "As I was walking up Union street three pretty young girls passed me on their wheels. The youngest was two rods behind and as she passed me she shouted to her companions in a distressed tone 'Oh, get off please! There is a bumble bee on me and I can't drive him away! I don't know how they made it, for they'd disappeared around the corner. I hope she did not get stung. I guess the one was only after honey"

The Saco river electric railroad has presented to the State railroad commissioners a petition for articles of association for a road to extend from Biddeford through Saco up the Saco river to Bonny Eagle in the town of Standish. The directors are William A Roberts, Charles S Hamilton and James O Bradbury. It will be 20 miles in length and will be of the standard gauge 4 feet 8½ inches. There will be $200 000 capital stock, in 81 shares

It was in a trolley car on the way to Union station in Portland and the well dressed individual seated near the door would have attracted no attention had not ill fortune induced him to lovingly the meet [illegible] of his fountain pen. In doing this he managed to loosen the cap so that when he started to put the pen back in his pocket [illegible] stream of ink spurted out upon his fall overcoat. In removing this with his handkerchief he [illegible] then managed to get some ink on his face. By this time his fellow passengers became interested but the unfortunate [illegible] oblivious of their stares, invested [illegible] countenance by means of a pocket mirror polished himself as much as possible with the soiled handkerchief and ended by taking a pill to steady his nerves

A traveling man lost a pocket purse Thursday afternoon containing fifty dollars, in Bath. He discovered his loss half an hour later when he purchased a glass of soda [illegible]. He had been carrying a short rest on a sofa in St Anthony's Hotel [illegible] return to see if he had not dropped his purse there. He found it on the floor under the sofa and was pretty well pleased as there was no mint in the book

A piece of a slate tombstone [illegible] was came to light [illegible] at the excavation of a wall that is being made about the road to the steamboat landing at Augusta. It is probably about a hundred years old. There is nothing on the stone [illegible] history. The only explanation which has offered [illegible] stood on some grave and it was broken. The pieces of which this is one were thrown down [illegible] having once been a place for rubbish [illegible] far away on what is now [illegible] was once a [illegible] factory [illegible] these were taken when the [illegible] abandoned. This rather knocks all the history out of the place. There [illegible] part of the world [illegible] used at that time where now [illegible] followed by the word of [illegible] that as far as it goes [illegible]

Work on the boiler house and coal pit at the hospital at Augusta is fast progressing with some 20 men and six pairs of horses [illegible]. A steam derrick has been put up for handling the stone which is being laid. The chimney for the boiler house will be over 180 feet high—one of the highest in the State. It being on elevated land it will be seen from far around. The highest in the State is about 200 feet in height

The topic for discussion on the streets in Hallowell for the past few days has been the resignation tendered by Rev F Chase who has been pastor of the Congregational church for 16 years. The trouble began some time ago when it was alleged that Mr Chase was renting one or more of his buildings at Kennebunkport for the sale of liquor. An investigation was made by members of the society and he was asked to resign. He did so accordingly and the resignation was accepted. It is generally conceded that Mr Chase has during the fifteen years pastorate served faithfully and well and has such a warm favorite particularly with the young people. Several meetings have been held relative to the matter by the members of the society and a council has been called for next Wednesday for a further discussion, when it will probably be definitely decided whether or not Mr Chase is to be formally dismissed by the parish. Mr Chase and his wife have left for Kennebunkport where they spend every summer

The many friends of Miss Lena I Cleveland, of Camden are congratulating her at present upon her success and good fortune in being awarded a scholarship which entitles her to a year's instruction in Pratt Institute, New York City, in addition to $100 in money. Miss Cleveland completed a three years' course of home study in connection with the Prang Normal Art School, in two years and held rank sufficiently high to win the scholarship for herself. Miss Cleveland's friends are all very proud of her ability as an artist and rejoice with her in the fine opportunity she will have to continue her studies

The Camden Band has given up the idea of having a celebration at Camden Monday, July 5. Instead they will run an excursion to Vinalhaven in connection with the Camden Comedy Company. The band will give two open air concerts and a dance afternoon and evening which the comedy company will present "Brac the Poor House Girl," at the town hall

Camden Herald Newspaper men are a hard crowd for criminals to run afoul of as the Portland bicy le thief found out at Rockland last Tuesday. A fellow by the name of Henry W Carlton hailing from New York accused of stealing a bicycle of Bailey & Co. of Portland, which he had ridden to Rockland, was captured in the latter city Tuesday by Officer Overton who, in company with two other officers, was taking him to the lockup when he made a sudden break from the officers and ran away like a deer. His pursuers were outstripped by Winslow of the Courier Gazette, who was gaining upon him rapidly when he saw ahead, on Masonic street, John W Thomas, also of the Courier Gazette, to whom he shouted to stop that man. Thomas without hesitation turned and seized the runaway, but the latter was under such an impetus that he broke away from the C-G man's grasp and was about to rush ahead into the outstretched arms of the editor of the Camden Herald, who by a singular coincidence happened at that moment on the spot, when Thomas stretched out one of his number nine boots and neatly tripped him up and leaped on him like a cat. At that moment the city marshal and two policemen drove up handcuffed the fellow and took him to the station. He was sent back to Portland on the Pullman Tuesday night

George F Goodwin's son, Percy of Biddeford, sustained a fracture of the leg while playing on the beach at Old Orchard Thursday afternoon. The boy is a pupil at Miss Cowan's school on Washington street, and he attended the picnic which Miss Cowan and Miss Porter gave the scholars of their schools Thursday. While running along the sand with Theo Andrews son of S S Andrews he made a misstep and fell breaking his right leg between the knee and the hip. He was taken to Miss Porter's cottage and Dr Rendall, summoned and afterward he was taken to his father's cottage at Ferry Beach Friday morning he was reported to be getting along as well as could be hoped for. The cause of the fracture was a very peculiar one, it being simply due apparently to the sudden turn which he made while running over the sand. He is a slight built lad, and has twice before suffered from bone fractures, at one time an arm and at another a leg having been broken. Young Goodwin bore his mishap pluckily, although in great pain, and talked to the physician while the bone was being set. The accident threw a damper, however, over the spirits of the others of the party and the picnic fun was brought to an end. It was an accident for which neither the teachers nor the boy's playmate could be in any way regarded as responsible

The record for landing a salmon at Rangeley was broken Friday by J I Hollis of Boston, who caught an 11½ pound fish near Timberlake's cottage. This is a half pound heavier than a salmon taken last year by Wm T Patten, of Lowell, Mass

Bids for $35,000 of Waterville funding bonds were opened Friday. Estabrook & Co, of Boston, got them at $108 58

The town of Dayton will be called upon to pay damages owing to the neglect of the town officials to repair a bad washout in one of the roads leading from that town to Bar Mills and Hollis. Frank McKenney, postmaster at Hollis, was returning from Biddeford in a carriage Tuesday night and in some way got mixed up on the road going over into Dayton. He was driving along late in the evening when suddenly he was precipitated into the gully. He landed on his head and besides injuring his skull sustained a cut in which the surgeon was obliged to take 11 stitches to close the wound. In addition to this he received other cuts and bruises about the face that rendered him unrecognizable even by the village physician Dr Weeks. He is still in a critical condition. He was not found until Wednesday. His wife Ada is a sister of Annie Louise Carey

Washington News Notes

"I think the most precise and methodical man I ever knew was Edward D Cooke, whose sudden death this morning so shocked us all" remarked a friend of the dead Congressman in conversation Thursday, say the Washington correspondent of the New York Tribune. He continued "I do not mean that method and precision are not desirable, especially in a lawyer—and he was a good one—but his friends sometimes thought he carried both to excess while those who were unfriendly sometimes accused him of old maidish ways. To such he always replied in perfect good temper that 'old maidish' ways were excellent ones. Perhaps that he regarded them as so good was one of the reasons why he never married and lived to become an old bachelor but not a crusty one by any means"

Chairman Dingley and his Republican colleagues of the Ways and Means Committee are watching the progress of the tariff bill in the Senate with an interest that is as eager deep and intense apparently as that felt by anybody whose business is to be affected favorably or injuriously in [illegible] by the advance or reduction of a rate of duty. They were disappointed for [illegible] days after the amendments proposed by the majority of the Finance Committee were published. They soon discovered however not only that the members of the committee were willing to modify or even to recall amendments whenever good reasons could be given for such action but that other influential Senators showed [illegible] disposition and their [illegible] began to rise. Since then so many changes have been made in the details of the original programme which have been acceptable to them that the spirits of the Republican members of the Ways and Means Committee have almost daily found new grounds of encouragement. Moreover while the daily rate of progress has been somewhat slow of necessity it has been much faster than some of them feared would be the case and they already begin to see daylight. [illegible] as one of them expressed it. Chairman Dingley expressed a strong hope that the bill [illegible] would be sent to conference by the latter part of this week, and that the [illegible] conference would not be [illegible] stormy [illegible] protracted as was generally predicted and believed two or three weeks ago

General Wade Hampton Commissioner of Railroads recently so ill that his life was despaired of has entirely recovered and is looking better than for several years past. A friend meeting him on the street the other day congratulated him on his vigor and greatly improved appearance. General Hampton is but a cripple he walks with marked ease for a man who wears a wooden foot. He lost a foot in the hunting field some years ago as the result of a fall with his horse. He has always been a great sportsman and since his misfortune barred him from the fowling piece he has redoubled his attachment for the fishing rod. The Commissioner of Railroads makes an annual tour over the roads of which he has official supervision and General Hampton is about to start on what will be his last trip of this character. This will take him across the Continent. Upon his return he will prepare his annual report and then it is understood he will give way for General Longstreet. While these two ex Confederates have not been intimate at any time the one having become a Republican after the war while the other has been a Democratic leader serving in office they are said to cherish a high regard for each other on personal grounds. Some of General Hampton's warmest personal friends for years past have been Republicans. During their service in the Senate together he and General Logan became intimate and at the funeral of General Sheridan General Hampton was an official pallbearer. General Hampton is in comfortable circumstances financially, and upon his retirement from office will return to South Carolina to spend the remainder of his days

There is at the Shoreham a young man who bears the illustrious name of George Washington. He hails from Brussels the capital of Belgium. He is fair complexioned good looking and intelligent, and is yet on the sunny side of thirty. "Yes" said he, "my name is George Washington, and I am of the same stock and family as the illustrious man who is looked up to in the United States as the greatest of all Americans. My great grandfather was John Washington a half brother of General Washington. My grandfather and father were born in England and my father married a Belgian lady. This is my second visit to America. I am a great lover of this country and hope some day to become a citizen of the United States." Mr Washington will be here several days on private business affairs. He is an inventor of some celebrity. On his previous visit his stay was so brief that he had not time to see Mount Vernon but will take an early opportunity of making a visit to that sacred spot

The Kentuckians in Washington have been in a small flurry for several days past about the movements of Governor Bradley. The Governor left Frankfort for a trip West, it was given out in search of a little rest but since then the impression has gained ground that he headed in this direction and has been maneuvering from some quiet retreat here for recognition for some of his friends from the Administration. The President has taken up the Kentucky cases and there is some lively contention between the Bradley faction and the Hunter faction. Senator Deboe has as a rule indorsed the Hunter men, and there is a feeling that his favor insures success. The Kentucky newspapers are without information as to where Governor Bradley is, and their representatives there have been kept busy with the rumor that he is probably in this town. He has not called at the White House, nor has he been seen at any of the resorts of the politicians. It is unusual for a Governor to leave his capital in this way, but no delays to public business are occasioned by it. Lieutenant Governor Worthington is acting Governor in the Governor's absence

Said a Virginia politician "Poetry may be losing its hold upon some people but it is still pretty strong in Virginia. A happy quotation from Byron recently made capital for Colonel John S Mosby all over the State. When it was announced that Colonel Mosby would apply to President McKinley for an office some of his old opponents opened fire on him again for going over to the Republicans after the war, and particularly for his always cordial expressed admiration for General Grant. It was rather poor business and for a time Colonel Mosby paid no attention to it.—But finally when the hope was expressed that if appointed he would not be credited to Virginia, the Colonel prepared a card in reply and it appeared in the newspapers. He reviewed briefly his career as soldier and citizen, stood by his guns and reminded his opponents that he was no longer a citizen of the State. He would abide by the record, he said. He had done his duty and if Virginia chose to reject him, let her, said he, quoting from Childe Harold

I [illegible] a loftier brow
And [illegible] the Spartan epitaph on me
Sparta hath [illegible]

"Do you know, the Colonel's grit and his poetry caught the popular feeling and the attacks on him ceased. A short time after that came the accident to Colonel Mosby at Charlottesville which cost him an eye and sympathy was expressed for him in every quarter. The Virginians like sentiment and that bit of Byron, grittily applied, did the work for Mosby's enemies

THE PINE TREE CLAN.

A Poem by Mrs. Frances L Mace Dedicated to State of Maine Association.

The following poem by Mrs Frances L Mace, formerly of Bangor was read by Mrs S A P Lemmon at the 20th annual reunion of the State of Maine Association of California a short time ago

Grateful we breathe the fragrant air
Of tropic palm and vine
But on our hearts engraved we bear
The symbol of the Pine

The warrior tree in wintry storm
In summer solitudes
It lifts to heaven its royal form
The Poet of the woods.

Dear evergreen our childhood knew
The lofty and the strong
St [illegible] all the long years through
Thy old majestic song!

[illegible] declares the Mother State
And we afar from home
Answer [illegible] every change of fate
"Lead on thy children come!

In marches of a mighty age
Our place is in the van
Proudly we claim our heritage
Who of the Pine Tree Clan!

FOOLED THE FARMERS

A Smooth Canvasser Supplies All West Bath with Water for Witch Hazel

A traveling salesman has been reaping a rich harvest among the farmers in West Bath by the sale of a large bottle of witch hazel which he claimed to be selling at cost to introduce it in the market. He was a smooth talker and during his travels made a sale at nearly every house in the village. One day it is said he disposed of nearly one hundred bottles. He had the agent's mode of gaining entrance to a house perfect. The lady only had to come to the door and he would manage to secure admittance and the chances more than even he would effect a sale

The witch hazel he offered was a superior article. The regular price was $1 5 a bottle but to introduce it he was leaving it for the cost price only ninety cents. For rheumatism it was a sure cure. At the end of three weeks he was coming around again and if the purchasers did not have to admit that they were benefited by the use of the medicine he would refund the money as gladly as he received it

In case he did not return the contract would be fulfilled as to refunding the money by druggist Anderson of Bath. The agent said he had been in the employ of Dr Anderson for several years but went on the road for his health. He worked West Bath last week and nearly all the prominent citizens were on his list of purchasers.

Selectman Joseph Winter bought a bottle. After the fellow left his home he surmised something was wrong, so he went to town and called at Anderson's with the bottle which he purchased. Dr Anderson does not know anything about the man and in examining the liquid pronounced it simply water with a few drops of ammonia worth about one cent a bottle

Mr Winter said it was the first time he had ever been cheated by a traveling agent and thought the fellow ought to be hunted down. He wouldn't prosecute him but would give him a dollar for the slick way which the work was done

BUSINESS COMING

For the Attention of the Governor and Council Monday

Governor Powers and council will be at the State House in executive session today the meeting to commence at 4 p m. It is one especially set for the canvass of the votes for Congressman of the Third Congressional District. Other business, however will come up for attention. The last meeting previous was held about the middle of May since then many nominations of importance having been made. These will come up for confirmation. In addition to those which already have been made are the following Arthur A Crafts, of Greenfield trial justice, William J Fowler, of Calais, disclosure commissioner and Austin W Suels, of Hampden Justice of the Peace. The drawing of the salaries warrants for quarterly payments will also be attended to

The matter of formally announcing the successful candidate of the recent Congressional election, Hon E C Burleigh will take the usual form of a certificate from the Governor to serve as credentials which the elected may present at the House of Representatives in Washington

This certificate is referred to the committee on elections which in due time reports and the elected one becomes a member of the House

It is expected that the pardon case of Mrs Lucinda Foss will come up for action. It will be remembered that this was recently heard and tabled. Through her counsel General John P Cilley of Rockland the claim is made that Mrs Foss is in such a state of health that if she is retained in prison much longer she is liable to die. It is further claimed that she is not entirely rational and that the offense of perjury, for which she is serving sentence, was the result of undue influence

The coming meeting of the Governor and Council is likely to be the last for some time. There may be one in July but the chances are that there will be none in August. The Governor doesn't like to call any more than are necessary. Of course there is the expense attendant upon it of various descriptions. The average is over one a month—about 15 a year, counting the continuous session during the Legislature as one

Thinks He Saw the Fire Bug

Mr Perry, the son of the agent for Perry block, 543½ Congress street, Portland thinks that he had a face to face interview with the firebug several days ago. While going up to one of the offices in the first story of the Perry block, Mr Perry passed a man in the entrance. He did not take particular notice of the man, however, at this time. A few minutes later he heard some one trying the door of an adjoining room which is untenanted, but was used for the storage of paints, etc, during repairs on the block. He went out and saw the same man at the door that he had passed on his way upstairs. "Who do you want to see?" he inquired. The man seemed a little confused. "I want to see a soap dealer," he replied. Mr Perry told him that there was no soap dealer in the building. "Why, yes there is" the man replied "for I saw him here only a few weeks ago" Mr Perry told the man that he had made a mistake

The man, continued positive in the assertion that the soap dealer he said he was looking for had an office in the building. Finally he inquired, "Isn't this No —" giving a number different from that of Perry block. Mr Perry said, "No, this is 543½" "Well, I guess I must have made a mistake then, said the stranger, and he went down the stairs

A little while later Mr. Perry heard the door of the vacant room gently tried again. He went out into the hall and the caller proved to be the same man with whom he had the interview only a short time before. The man, when he heard Mr. Perry coming, ran up the next flight of stairs rapidly and began his inquiries at a tailor shop on that floor, substantially the same as that of Mr Perry. The tailor had overheard the conversation between the stranger and Mr Perry in the hall below and told the visitor there was no soap dealer in the building. The man then pulled out of his pocket what appeared to be a show handbill, and after consulting it, said "I guess I am completely turned around. I see I have made a mistake" He then went out

He was seen by Mr Perry again the same day in a driveway in the rear of the building

Mr Perry is convinced that the way the man acted and hung around the premises that he must be the firebug. As there was no evidence against him Mr Perry did not feel like summoning the police

Mr Perry describes his suspect as a middle aged man with whiskers about his chin and neck, of medium height and build and dressed in a cutaway coat. He was also particularly impressed by a wild expression in the man's eyes and thinks that he is mentally unbalanced

CITY AND VICINITY.

The railroad commissioners have just completed an examination of the Canadian Pacific railroad. A railroad's physical condition is a matter for much investigation when the commissioners make their semi annual visits, and while the managements of the roads make every effort to keep things as they should be, there is always something that gets by their notice. The suggestions from the commissioners being a matter of vital interest to the roads safety and general good management their suggestions of change, mostly on the right side for safety's sake, with a good margin are well received

A Bar Harbor paper tells a pretty little story of how an innocent honest little girl disarmed Old Crusty. She was walking by the flowers on the rich man's grounds, admiring their color and enjoying their fragrance but carefully keeping her hands away from them. The owner saw her, however and with manners much less gentle than hers, thumped on the window and ordered her to go away. The little girl was indignant at the implied charge of wrong doing and answered as she started away "I would not pick your flowers sir not for the world" Then Old Crusty was ashamed of himself and he came out and picked her a nice bouquet

Royalty Affected Her Mind

Mrs Johanna Dreyer 35 years old who resides on Lexington avenue, New York was arraigned by her husband a tailor, in the Yorkville police court Wednesday morning on a charge of insanity. Dreyer told the magistrate that his wife had been out of her mind since she chanced to meet several members of the family of the Czar of Russia in Austria several years ago

"Why, Judge" said Mrs Dreyer, on hearing this statement, "the Czarina knows me well. I am a refined and respectable woman, but I have been outrageously treated by my husband and by those he has sent me to"

Dreyer said that his wife had gone to Austria about three years ago and had met some members of the royal family of Russia. Since that time she had been mentally unbalanced on the subject of royalty. She imagined that the Czarina was much impressed with her, and that Her Majesty had promised to correspond with her. He had had to place her in a sanitarium at Stamford Ct, but she had been discharged a month ago as cured. Since that time she had been so queer in her actions and conduct that he had been forced to move from one boarding house to another, and could not remain in one place long. She became so convinced that she had been wronged at the sanitarium in Connecticut that she went to the Mayor's office and demanded $1,000 000 from the city for the treatment she had received there. They told her they had not the ready cash at hand and she promised to call again

Mrs Dreyer frequently interrupted her husband's explanation and Magistrate Wentworth at last allowed her to talk in order to test her mind. He finally committed her to Bellevue Hospital. When the ambulance arrived she refused to enter it and fought so fiercely that several men were required to carry her down to the vehicle

Deputy Sheriff Eugene Blanchard, of Waldo county came to this city several days ago searching for Henry W Colson of Stockton Springs on a warrant charging him with arson In the evening he and Capt Fahey, of the night police force started out in different directions but not far from each other, and it was not long before he deputy sheriff met Colson on May street He immediately placed him under arrest and Capt Fahey, who appeared on the scene quickly afterwards took Colson to the police station and locked him up

The alleged crime was committed on the night of June 22 when the house, barn and other buildings of William N McFarland, in Stockton Springs, were burned The buildings were destroyed, and McFarland's loss was $1,500, the savings of years Deputy Sheriff Blanchard will leave on this morning's train for Belfast, with Colson in his custody and the prisoner will be given a hearing in that city The officers say that Colson has been heard to threaten to wipe McFarland off the face of the earth

A WHIG representative interviewed Colson at the police station Saturday night Colson said that he did not know what he had been arrested for and when informed said he should deny the charge as he had nothing what ver to do with the burning He said that McFarland is his sister's husband, that she owned the buildings and that there was no ill feeling whatever between them He said that he left Stockton Springs a week ago last Friday and Searsport on Tuesday and has been selling easences here.

A DELIGHTFUL VISIT.

The Trip of Beausoant Commandery of Malden, Mass.

Most Eojoyable Entertained in This City and at Moosehead Lake.

The Sir Knights Left on Their Return Home on Saturday Afternoon.

[Special correspondence of Whig]

The pilgrimage of the Sir Knights and ladies of Beausoant Commandery, of Malden, has been a grand success If we can believe the enthusiastic accounts given of it by every one of them with whom your correspondent had the opportunity of talking, and everyone seemed perfectly willing to talk about it and to express delight at all the arrangements The Knights of St John's Commandery can be congratulated on the success with which everything went of as planned, and the great pleasure they were the means of conferring upon their guests from Malden All the several committees must have performed their duties in the most prompt and efficient manner or such a result could not have been so successfully attained

For it is no small matter to take four hundred people and transport them by rail and steamer over such a journey and take such good care of them and entertain them all the time and bring them back promptly and safely and send them away feeling so happy as was done in this case Beausoant Commandery arrived here as you have before stated about 1 30 Wednesday noon on the Penobscot They had a most delightful sail up the river and were met at Bucksport and most cordially received by a delegation from St John s Commandery headed by the Generalissimo, J A Boardman and by Past Commander W Z Haxton who was Eminent Commander when Beausoant entertained St John s in Boston during the triennial in 1889

On their arrival here they were met at the wharf by St John's Commandery and were escorted to the Bangor House for dinner At 3 p m a parade was made by both commanderies over a portion of the city In the evening an informal reception was given them by the ladies and Sir Knights of St John's Commandery at Masonic Hall the details of which have already been given in THE WHIG Thursday morning St John s Commandery, to the number of about one hundred, met the Sir Knights of Beausoant at the Bangor House and escorted them to the special train provided for the excursion by the B & A rail road, the ladies of the party having been already carried to the depot in carriages provided by Landlord and Sir Knight Chapman

When all were safely aboard the train it was found that there were about three hundred and fifty in the party and this was at once telegraphed to Landlord Denison of the Kineo House by the efficient chairman of the committee of arrangements, Sir Knight A B Farnham Stops were made at Orono Oldtown Dover Foxcroft and Guilford to take on the Sir Knights along the line, who wished to go on the excursion It was soon found that the party had increased to four hundred and so Col Farnham sent another telegram to Kineo stating that instead of a party of four hundred with appetites of a thousand The visitors were very much pleased with the grand scenery along the route and many were the expressions of delight and admiration as the train went slowly up the mountain sides and over the long trestles

At Greenville a smart shower struck and the great drops came down with a tremendous rush for a few minutes, but instead of being troubled by this the guests seemed greatly pleased for as one of them expressed it, they thought the St John s Knights had probably planned it for a variation of their programme and to show them how it could rain in Maine when it tried earnest But the shower was of short duration and all were soon embarked aboard the Katahdin and steaming out of West Cove and headed for Kineo The visitors were surprised at the great size of Moosehead Lake and were filled with admiration at the grandeur of the scenery about it

When Kineo was reached it was found that Mr Denison had taken Col Farnham's telegram as a joke and had provided places in the dining room for only three hundred, thinking there would probably be less than more than that number And you ought to have seen the hustle which he found out his mistake It was a great problem for a while to provide food and lodging for such a great crowd but he was equal to the emergency and though there was pretty close packing in some of the rooms yet every one was good natured about it and took the best that could be done for them as satisfactory without finding fault with what could not be helped In the evening a very enjoyable entertainment was given by Reeves' Band and the commandery quartette, consisting of Sir Knights Boardman Morton, Gordon and Palmer

The evening concert was concluded with a serenade by the Kazoo Band of thirteen pieces made up from Sir Knights of Beausoant Commandery It is said that they used that band in some of their Masonic ceremonies, but your correspondent would not dare to vouch for that for he doesn't believe all that the Masons tell him about such things Friday was a most enjoyable day The weather was all that could have been desired and some sailed about the lake in the Katahdin, some took the buckboard ride, some climbed the mountains, some went fishing, and some just sat still and breathed the invigorating air, and gazed in delight upon the glorious scenery and made plans for coming back just as soon as they could do so " At five in the afternoon a dress parade was held by the two commanderies

Col A B Farnham, past grand commander of the grand commandery of Maine, acted as reviewing officer with the past officers of both commanderies acting as his staff Lieut Royden of St. John s commandery, who is military instructor at the University of Maine, acted as adjutant and made the parade go off in a most creditable manner considering he had to deal with men the most of whom had never seen a dress parade and many of whom had never drilled at all Those who witnessed the parade from the veranda of the hotel said that the line of dancing plumes and glittering swords, and waving banners, with the waters of Moosehead and its grand scenery for a back ground was a most beautiful and inspiring spectacle Friday evening another very enjoyable entertainment was given by Reeves' Band and the commandery quartette

Everyone was delighted with the grand playing of this celebrated band Many enthusiastic lovers of fine music said to your correspondent that it was worth all the trip would cost them just to hear that band play. The entertainment was made very enjoyable also by the singing of Miss Jean Foss, daughter of Sir Knight Foss, of Malden, and Mrs. Carlisle, of Malden, and Miss Merrill, of Brewer Miss Foss has a wonderfully fine contralto voice which has been carefully trained and cultivated, and she made such a delightful impression that she received two enthusiastic encores Mrs Carlisle, who by the way is a fine looking woman with a form like Adah Behan, made a most charming picture as she mounted the platform and with the flag waved in front of her sang the Star Spangled Banner She responded to the encore with The Suwanee River. There is no need of telling audiences about Bangor that Miss Merrill sang delightfully, for they know from personal experience that she always does so

In the midst of the entertainment Eminent Commander Griffin arose and addressing Sir Knight Farnham, who was master of ceremonies said that he did not want to interrupt so pleasant an entertainment but he could not let so favorable an opportunity go by without letting St John's Commandery know how much their guests were delighted with what had been done for them and how very greatly they appreciated all the kind attentions that had been fairly showered upon them and he introduced Past Commander Foss to represent Beausoant Commandery for the occasion Sir Knight Foss said that when the commandery voted to become the guests of St. John s Commandery, of Bangor, he said to them, boys you don't know the meaning of the word hospitality as you will find it interpreted by those boys down at Bangor

I have been there before and I know just what they will do But even I did not expect so grand a reception as you have been giving us since we came among you We thank you for it and hope to live to see the time when we can return some of the pleasure you have given us He then introduced Deputy Grand Commander Shryock, of Maryland, by saying that at the beginning of the war there was living in Baltimore a loyal woman, who though in the midst of those who were disloyal yet put out the Stars and Stripes above her own home She was waited upon by her neighbors who told her that she must pull it down or there would be trouble She replied that the old flag would only be taken from her house over her dead body That lady was Commander Shryock's mother

He was given a grand reception and responded feelingly and eloquently for his beloved State of Maryland Sir Knight Foss then introduced Past Commander Walker of Beausoant Commandery a former Maine boy Sir Knight Walker made a very pleasant speech expressing his sentiments by the following story He said that when he was a small boy living up in Exeter Maine, one of his playmates went down on a visit to Bangor and told him when he returned that one could not go down to Bangor on the old Levant road and stand on the top of the hill and look down on the city for the first time and not say o-o-oh!

He thought he could do it out when soon after he came down and caught sight of the beautiful city from the top of that hill he at once was compelled to say o-o-o-oh! in admiration And he said that this time from the first moment he arrived in the city until then he had been obliged to continually keep saying o-o-o-o-oh! at the different things that were done for his entertainment

Col Farnham then in a very graceful manner introduced Eminent Commander Robinson who in behalf of St John s Commandery, said that if their guests were pleased with their humble efforts in trying to entertain them, St John s Commandery was fully satisfied, for no matter how much you may have enjoyed your trip no matter how good a time you are having we are having greater enjoyment and a much better time, inasmuch as it is 'More blessed to give than to receive '

The party returned to Bangor at 11 30 and after escorting their guests to the Bangor House for dinner Sir John s Commandery went to Masonic Hall and took their lunch At 1 o'clock the lines were drawn up in front of the Bangor House and just before the march to the depot was begun the quartette stepped out in front of Beausoant Commandery and sang several verses improvised for the occasion to the tune of 'Good Night Ladies We're Going to Leave You Now, and closed by the whole commandery joining in singing Sir Say We All of Us accompanied by the Bangor Band The march was then taken for the Maine Central depot where good bys were said and one of the most pleasant occasions in the history of St John s Commandery came to an end The Sir Knights then marched back to their asylum where they were thanked by the Eminent Commander for the prompt and efficient and good natured manner in which they had performed every duty he had asked of them and were dismissed

Miss Mullaney's Address

Miss Margaret Mary Mullaney spoke upon 'The Newspaper in Literature' She said Horace Greeley used to say the best newspaper man was he who had slept on newspapers and eaten ink Notwithstanding the haste with which much newspaper work has to be done and much vulgar matter that is written the newspaper gives great scope for the development of high literary ability It may be thought that journalism does not promote literature The editorial first saw the light as a commentary upon the news When the able newspaper man does not create he presents facts glorified by ability and when he does create the article shows his aims Many of our own beloved doctors of literature were first newspaper men

Miss Rowe's Address

Miss Annie Bernice Rowe spoke upon Crying for the Moon She said that the tendencies and desires shown in the child grow and ripen in the man Crying for the moon is one of the most common attributes It ceases only with the end of man's life It is the desire for riches or honors beyond one's capabilities In youth the most important subject which confronts the boy is the choosing of a trade or profession He should not cry for the moon Let the boy know his work and stand high in his trade or profession A boy who is born to be a statesman would not sit comfortably in a seat in Congress Ambition makes the little less When we feel dissatisfied let us ask ourselves have we not all we deserve? Do not be ashamed of a humble position

The Poem

A finely played orchestral number was followed by the poem by Miss Lillian Lee Clarry The sentiment of it was very pleasing and interesting and the poem showed that Miss Clarry possesses a great deal of talent, It was delivered in a manner which reflected great credit upon the elocutionary powers of Miss Clarry

The Class History

The class history was given by Murray Snell Danforth He sketched the career of the class from the freshman year 1893 He feelingly referred to the death of Warren Lee spoke of the reception to the seniors charges in and about the school building the change of teachers, regret being expressed at the departure of Miss Brown a talented teacher and friend of the scholars, the improvement in instruction in science, the training school for teachers, etc The historian gave some statistics concerning the class such as the religious denominations being, Congregationalists Baptists Advents, Universalists and Catholics politics one silver Democrat, Republicans in and divided majority a new party known as the Wigwams average weight 133 ounces, average height 5 7 9 yards members born from 1876 to 1881 The historian gave some amusing advice to the scholars of the under classes

The Prophecy

The class prophecy was by Miss Louise Estelle Angley It gave a forecast of the future of the members of the class and many amusing references were made to the positions in which the members might hereafter be found It brought out numerous points with which the members of the class were familiar and they showed signs of fully recognizing the hits which were made

The orchestra again played and then came the conferring of diplomas and awarding of medals

Diplomas and Medals

Rev E I Pember upon conferring the diplomas said that all Americans have a martial spirit and yet abhor war for as we are educated it is in the line of peace Our schools are the recruiting stations for good government We, as citizens of Bangor, are proud of our schools and what they are doing for us It is the best investment we can make to give our schools a high standard

It will cost money but taxpayers don t complain, for it will be the poorest economy to have anything but the best Rev Mr Pember told the class that they would find the future a sealed book He hoped that they would take advantage of what they had learned and make the best use of their talents As they went out in the world under sealed orders like a man of war, he hoped they would find themselves to be for a haven of peace and gladness With the advantages which they had much right be expected of them He presented the diplomas and then the Holton medals to the following

CENTRAL STREET TRACKED.

The B O & O Company Pushes Its Line Through—Order Served on the Company for a Court Hearing

People were considerably surprised Saturday night and Sunday to see a large crew of men at work tearing up the pavement and laying track in Central street, as it was a contested point and there was a supposition that there would be some legal proceedings before work began there The work was started early in the evening and was continued through the night and yesterday with the result that the entire street has a track running through its center

The B O & O company claims that it has a right, from its charter, to go through Central street, but the Municipal Officers have not made any location of the road, having tabled a petition for such location It was supposed that the company would apply for a writ of mandamus to compel, if possible, the Municipal Officers to locate the track but it has not yet done so and went ahead with the work without any such preceding

On Saturday Charles H Bartlett, Esq, who is associated with C P Stetson Esq, as counsel for property owners on Central street, went to Ellsworth and procured from Judge Wiswell the necessary documents for an order summoning the B O & O company to appear in court in Bangor next Saturday at 10 a m and make answer why an injunction should not be placed upon the company to prevent its Central street work This order was served by Deputy Sheriff J J Maloney upon Mayor Beal as a director of the company early Saturday evening

Mayor Beal was interviewed by a WHIG representative yesterday The Mayor said that about three weeks ago he made a contract with W D Smith to construct the line in this city to Front street and that Mr Smith had decided to go ahead Saturday evening and construct the Central street line on his own responsibility, he (Mayor Beal) having made no objection The Mayor said that the company had a location for poles on Central str et and that probably in about a week, the Central street line would be in running order He said that Mr Smith did the track laying Saturday night and Sunday because Central street was then freer from teams than at any other time of the week and it would better accommodate the people then He said that the order had been served upon him as above stated

ROW AT PUSHAW.

There was a lively row or two at Pushaw Lake Sunday afternoon due to drink and the ruffianly nature of the men concerned One man was knocked down and a revolver fell out of his pocket Several men were badly used up it is said and desperate fighting was carried on Ball games were played forenoon and afternoon and the affair was a disgraceful one Some Bangor men were out there and a number from Oldtown
